A PSALM of THANKSGIVING

By GEO. H. GIVAN

I.

Today we lift our thanks and praise
To Father, Son, and Holy Ghost.
Rejoice with man, ye rock-ribbed hills,
Clap loud your hands, O princely peaks!
And trill! ye pines that kiss the sky,
For Great Jehovah's love and care
Hath yet not passed His people by.

II.

Once more our Land the Lord hath blessed,
The year with plenty hath He crowned.
Rejoice with man, O lute and harp,
And let the trumpet peal its blast!
Let music fill the earth and sky,
For Great Jehovah's love and care
Hath yet not passed His people by.

III.

Our fruitful trees were laden well,
And all the vines in fullness bore.
Rejoice with man, O winds and clouds,
And wish! ye lurid lightning's flash;
And roll! ye thunders through the sky,
For Great Jehovah's love and care
Hath yet not passed His people by.

IV.

Our cribs are filled with golden corn,
While garnerers groan with precious wheat.
Rejoice with man, O sun and moon!
And shout for joy! ye twinkling stars:
Let all the planets loudly cry,
For Great Jehovah's love and care
Hath yet not passed His people by.

V.

No pestilence hath cursed our Land,
No war hath touched her peaceful shores.
Rejoice with man, ye Spirits blessed,
And sing, O sing! Angelic throngs:
Ye Heavenly Hosts, Hosanna! cry,
For Great Jehovah's love and care
Hath yet not passed His people by.

—Christian Advocate.

The private life of a public man is no affair for public judgment or public discussion unless it directly affects the public. There may be matters which deeply concern the wife and family or the immediate friends of men holding an office of public trust, which are in no way matters for public concern. But when the public official betrays the confidence of the public in public matters, it is not only the right but the duty of the public press to deal with. —Las Cruces Republican.

Mrs. C. S. Wilson is expected to arrive this afternoon from Kokone, Ind., to spend the winter with Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Jones. She is Mrs. Jones' mother, and has spent one winter in Alamogordo.

J. I. Bailey of Cloudercroft was here Wednesday night, enroute to El Paso on a business visit.

THE OTHER FELLOW SAYS

In Georgia they tell of a prisoner who had been convicted a dozen times of stealing, who, when placed at the bar for his latest offense, displayed a singular curiosity.

"Your honor," said he, "I should like to have my case postponed for a week. My lawyer is sick."

"But," said the magistrate, "you were caught with your hand in this gentleman's pocket. What can your counsel say in your behalf?"

"Exactly so, your honor; that is what I am curious to know." —Green Bag.

College President—"You can't get into our college. You aren't qualified in the entrance requirements in Sanskrit, Greek, or Calculus."

Prospective Student—"No, but I am very well grounded in reading, writing and arithmetic."

College President—"Great Scott, man, you don't need a college education! Why don't you go into business?"—Puck.

"And you still have hopes of influencing old Titewad to become a regular attendant at your church?"

"Yes, and I am more sanguine than ever."

"You are?"

"Yes. If the government really begins the coining of half-cent pieces I regard it as a cinch." —Houston Post.

"Shall I empty your wastebasket?" asked the janitor. "It is brimful of correspondence."

"No," answered the man who is combining politics with high finance. "Just hand me my bonds and stock certificates and I'll stuff 'em in some pigeonhole so that you can lock the wastebasket in the safe." —Washington Star.

"There's only one thing I've got against the Congressional Record," said Farmer Cornassel. "You refer to its occasional suspension of publication?" "No. It's kind o' misleadin'. A lot of the speeches our Congressman makes about hisself ought to be marked 'advt.'" —Washington Star.

"That novelist says he takes his characters from real life."

"He should be encouraged to keep on taking them," replied Mr. Growcher. "The fewer like them in real life, the better." —Washington Star.

Restaurant Patron (enthusiastically)—"I'm glad to see your baby has shut up, madam."

Mother—"Yes, sir. You are the only thing that's pleased him since he saw the animals eat at the Zoo." —Puck.

Marks—"I hear that you have been operating in the stock market."

Parks—"You've been misinformed. I've been operated upon." —Boston Transcript.

Miss Quizz—Have you ridden in Charley's new auto?
Mrs. Malaprop—Yes; it was lovely. There was some osculation, but it didn't bother me a bit. —Brooklyn Life.

"What's the matter with Briggs?"

"He was getting shaved by a lady barber when a mouse ran across the floor." —Life.

Tommy—"Pop, what is a free-thinker?"

Pop—"A free thinker, my son, is any man who isn't married." —Philadelphia Record.

Two Perfect Ladies—The bride is a refined young lady of culture as is also Mr. Smith. —Pierre (S. D.) Messenger.

Better go to the dance at the Beavers' ball Saturday night.

Tragedies of Love

She stood calm and majestic, awaiting his arrival. As he entered the room she threw him a sharp glance. A little embarrassed, he scattered his eyesight, whereupon she flung him a bitter taunt. Goaded beyond endurance, he hurled invective, and she burst into tears. Then his voice broke; she cast down her eyes, her face fell, and she dropped her hands at her side.

He lost his head, his temples were overturned and his courage oozed out at his finger ends. He was beside himself, and stood rooted to the spot. She crushed him with a look and he was all broken up.

She, too, was terribly upset and went all to pieces.

By chance the parlor maid entered.

Seeing the debris, she swept the room with a glance and immediately dusted. —Chicago Record Herald.
